Although the experiment looked quite dangerous, the fire laddies had no fear. The firemen at truck A were especially courageous and acquitted themselves nobly.

ECONOMIC QUESTIONS

d Before the Meeting of Local Meth MR. PAUL BOWEN PRESENTS THE WRONGS OF THE LABORING MEN, WHICH HE THINKS SHOULD BE REMEDIED-MR. W. A. CROFFUT BELIEVES

At the preachers' meeting of the Methodist ministers at Foundry Church the question of industrial economics and socialism was again taken up. Last week, it will be remembered, Mr. Oyster represented the Federation of Labor side of the question and this morning by invitation Mr. Paul Bowen appeared as a Knight of Labor to propose some solution for the present economic difficulties, while Mr. W. A. Croffut championed the present condition of consumes interest material bleasing of this age is machinery, because it produces much and consumes little.

6. The ownership of land depends on precisely the same principles as the ownership of houses, horses or any other property, and therefore to appropriate it without full components of the present condition of the present condition of corporations are to be encouraged. Croffut championed the present condition of 8. The menace of want is the mildest stimuaffairs so far as competition of labor was con-cerned. Both gentlemen were listened to with cerned. Both gentlemen were listened to with great attention, and at the close of the ad-

MR. PAUL BOWEN'S ADDRESS. Mr. Bowen claimed that in ten years the common laborer had increased 80 per cent, while of skilled laborers there had been only an increase of 16 per cent. Child and aged labor was supplanting the skilled laborer and many nillion men who wished to work were lying in chronic idleness. The poorest pay was given for the most unhealthy and dangerous labor, while the highest pay went for work surrounded by healthy environments. What he complained about, said Mr. Bowen, was the unsured and franchises of the Washington and franchises and equal distribution. One man now often pos-sessed half a dozen residences, while tweive other persons were crowded into one small

THE GREATEST WISERY The greatest misery arose from the fact that hose who lived a life of constant toil lived also a life of constant fear that even the poor pittance they received would be taken from them. There was dissatisfaction, undoubted dissatistion, and military officers today were planning means for the suppression of not mobs of anarchists, but of disaffected laboring men. People were turning from honest labor to the government for special privileges and in the main only two types of humanity were being bred—the crafty and the brutal. All classes of citizens were organizing for the purpose of lobbying and this was so even of the ministers. There was a war between capitalists and laborers. Not over the production of wealth, but over its division. Many reliefs had been proposed for this state of affairs.

The main item included the United Press franchise, a large amount of type, a hand press and other printing paraphermalia and office fittings. There were three bidders. The bidding was tarted by Mr. Samuel Maddox at $5,000 and from that figure it rose in two jumps to $7,000 and in hundred dollar bide to $9,000. Then by additional sums of $50 each time it rose to $10,100, at which point Mr. Maddox of the desk and beneath it is a map of the United States showing parts of Canada and New Mexico. A writing pad rests on the glass, and there are the customary desk fittings, as well as the papers which are usually found in the workshop of a busy man like Mr. Wanamaker. The map shows the counties in each state, the principal cities and towns, the lines of railways, &c., and when visiters talk to Mr. tance they received would be taken from them. wealth, but over its division. Many reliefs had been proposed for this state of affairs.

Charity was one, but Mr. Bowen held that in this regard charity was a failure. It enabled men to compromise with their conscience by giving back a small portion of their gains. It also encouraged pauperism. To receive something for nothing, said Mr. Bonen, is the surest means of breaking down manhood. vestigation it was discovered that the body of a CHARITY NOT A SUBSTITUTE FOR JUSTICE. Charity was no substitute for justice. Edueation and increased skill had been proposed as remedies, but would equally fail of success. The fault is competition and the fight would be waged just as bitterly, whatever the universal condition of education and skill. Economy likewise would fail. A broad spreading national economy would be a na-tional calamity, throwing millions out of employment.

All these remedies which had been mentioned.

said Mr. Bowen, were virtues, and applied in-dividually would be a help, but applied universally would prove an evil. Sally would prove an evil.

Continuing, Mr. Bowen said the golden rule was a good one, but that the golden rule was defeated by the rule of gold. The remedy for the existing evils, he said, was to socialize land and capital. There must be free access to the land. In this regard a child today was at a disadvantage compared with the wild of this Mary Lee, a servant girl, was sentenced to sixty days. She was arrested by Detectives Mahon and Horne for stealing a gold ring and pin belonging to Joseph Fitzgerald. idvantage compared with the child of thirty ears ago.

WANTS TAXES ABOLISHED. He did not want land confiscated, but wanted axes abolished and ground rents appropriated to public uses. All men, he held, had an equal right to the earth. Those who held possession of portions of it had merely a franchise from of portions of it had merely a franchise from the people for that portion and should pay to the people the rent for the portion held. Everybody either directly or indirectly pays rent and what was needed was simply that rent should go to the people instead of to private parties. The plan, he held, would utterly de-stroy all speculation in land.

Nature, said Mr. Bowen, was the first and reatest employer. Nature said come and work or me and take all that is made. The capitalep you alive. If the land were free nature ould stand in the open market and bid against te capitalist employer and wages would be gulated by nature.

A CO-OPERATIVE COMMONWEALTH. To organize a co-operative commonwealth as a tremendous affair and he only believed approaching the matter by stages. He ought the government should appropriate all railroad, telegraph and telephone systems and all municipal franchises. These things could be accomplished, said Mr. Bowen. Every child today had on its shoulders a $500 railroad bond on which it must pay on which it must pay interest and dividends. Run the railroads in the interest of the people, not for profits, but for expenses, and the bone on the other hand would belong to the child. on the other hand would belong to the child.

The government, said Mr. Bowen, had never gone into any productive enterprise in which it has not succeeded far better than any private citizens could. The mail service was cited by the speaker as an instance.

Mr. Bowen held that the plans outlined would not result in any loss of individuality, but would allow additional time free from grinding down occupations for the development of

MR. W. A. CROFFUT'S REMARKS. Mr. W. A. Croffut was introduced and spoke to some length. He did not believe things were going to ruin. He did not believe the were going to ruin. He did not believe the poor were getting poorer or the rich richer. Things were well today and would be better in the future. The present economic system of competition he held was the best conceivable. Mr. Croffut showed by diagrams and figures that wages have doubled during the last forty years, while the price of almost everything that men buy has been reduced one-half in the same length of time. The wage-earner who then got $1.50 a day now gets $3, and 50 cents now buys as much as $1 bought then. Reasoning from analogy, he showed that in thirty years from now (for the progress accelerates) the from now (for the progress accelerates) the man who now gets $3 a day will get $6 a day, and things that $1 buys today can be had for 50 cents in the year 1925.

man who now gets $3 a day will get $6 a day, and things that $1 buys today can be had for 50 cents in the year 1925.

THE HAND AND BRAIN.

The speaker held that the hand is a trivial factor in production; that men and women are now mostly hired not to work but to think, to superintend capital in the shape of machinery, and that the amount of machinery in the country equaled the combined strength of 200,000,000 men. He held that if there was a fixed amount of labor and of property in the country the argument of the restrictionists would be sound and no man could then honestly make a million dollars, but, as a matter of fact, the amount of property and of labor is tremendously flexible and one man like Vanderbilt can earn (that is, create.) a million dollars' worth of property that did not before exist as honestly as another man can earn $1. The brain, he said, is now the chief factor in industry, and the man who has the brain that can guess what people are going to want next year; is the man who will heaven a factor in fantum.

want next year is the man who will become a captain of industry.

If there was only so much work in the country, said Mr. Croffat, then all machinery should be destroyed and prevent all immigration. Mr. Croffut paid his respects in severe language to the contract labor law.

In speaking of socialism Mr. Croffut said our ancestors a few centuries ago were socialists. The inhabitants of Central Africa were socialists, and socialism, he said, had been outgrown and cast off. Speaking of the mail service the speaker remarked that a body of citizens had agreed to run the mail service and pay the government a premium for the privilege. The mail service at any rate during its existence had only reduced its prices 50 per cent, while Western Union rates and railroad fares have been reduced 800 to 400 per cent.

by citing as an instance of what competition by citing as an instance of what competition would do a suit of clothes which he wore, bought in the north for $1.24. Machinery did this, he said.

Mr. Croffut presented a "thesis" compactly outlining his views, of which these planks give an idea:

1. Labor is a commodity, like flour or cotton cloth, and should be bought in the cheapest market and sold in the dearest.

2. Wages are a compromise between the highest sum which a capitalist will pay rather than forego the chance of profit making, and the lowest price which a laborer will accept rather than forego the chance of employment.

capital are equal and should have an equal THE CASE OF THE HEALTH OFFICER share of the joint product. 4. The wage earner is today better paid, better fed, better clad and better housed than ever before in the history of the world. His wages have doubled in forty years while the price of the commodities have gone down one-half.

Therefore, while poverty will be constantly smeliorated it will never be abolished.

9. All efforts to diminish production, whether by destroying machinery, prohibiting the im-migration of the healthy and industrious poor, opposing and denouncing railroads, preventing boys from learning trades or keeping criminals in enforced idleness are at war with the welfare
